

About Me

Tishana has always seen beauty in the details.

Born in Jamaica and raised in South Florida, she grew up surrounded by people from every background and culture. From a young age, she learned to see the beauty in those differences, and that perspective follows her into every consultation she has today.

She is a two-time honors graduate of the University of Miami, holding both her BSN and MSN in Nursing. She built her clinical foundation in the Pediatric Intensive Care Unit at UCLA, where caring for children at their most vulnerable taught her that precision and compassion are never separate things. That lesson has never left her.

Aesthetics became the space where her love of science and beauty finally met. She trained in London, New York, Miami, Los Angeles, and San Francisco, gaining real hands-on experience across every skin tone, facial structure, and body type. She is fluent in Spanish and brings the same ease and attentiveness to every patient, regardless of background.

When you sit across from Tishana, you feel it immediately. She listens before she plans. She asks the right questions. She takes the time to understand not just what you want but why you want it. Her patients describe her as warm, approachable, and someone they trust completely.

And then there are the results.
